The word institution may remind you a world famous quote, the more rational an institution is the less it suffers by making concessions to others. It was quoted by the author of famous novel The Last Puritan & a great Spanish & American philosopher George Santayana. However, concept of institution varies with the subject but by and large revolve around Georges quote. So, top 5 criteria for selection of educational institutes regardless of subjects have been tried to explore in below mentioned points:-

- 1) Usually, institutions are based upon formal and informal constraints and their enforcement characteristics where constraints refer to rules, laws, norms of behavior, self imposed codes of conduct, etc. Hence, analysis of such constraints must be first criteria of choosing the best one educational institution.
- 2) If, you are going for sports, science and medicine institution then look for the institute that prominently addresses persistent societal problems. Because, sports, science and medicine characterizes a very unique form of social bounding. One should not forget while selecting the institutions that their expertise in different subjects must work like an agent of social control so participation of institution besides quality educations must be a major criterion of selecting best institution.
- 3) Similar theory applies in other subjects like financial subject which often appears in news. Basically, the subject is an intermediary of the capital and debt markets. Hence, try to analyze the presence of financial institutions. A good financial institution means providing substantial flow of money through the economy. Flow of money is very important because it prominently mitigate the risk brought by individual account holders in terms of providing varieties of loans. So, chose the financial educational institution that is known for expertise in rapid flow of money through economy.
- 4) A good institution does not mean making book worm. It means to make an innovator. Hence, institution must be a stage to learn and identify different aspects of life. Thus, recreational activities also must be a major criterion for selection of best educational institution. However, everywhere; it is not possible for institutions to provide job guarantee but they can definitely mould their students into tough competitor.
- 5) With this last fifth point, importance of accreditation criteria is being mentioned here. However, it can not be reliable everywhere as in mostly cases; it has been experienced that these accreditations are sponsored or fixed but still we must understand the bases of accreditation. Because, these bases may help you as on individual level in exploring the quality of institutions.
